

DAVIDSON HAS NOT PROMISED

Remains On The Fence Relative To His Attitude On The Presidency.

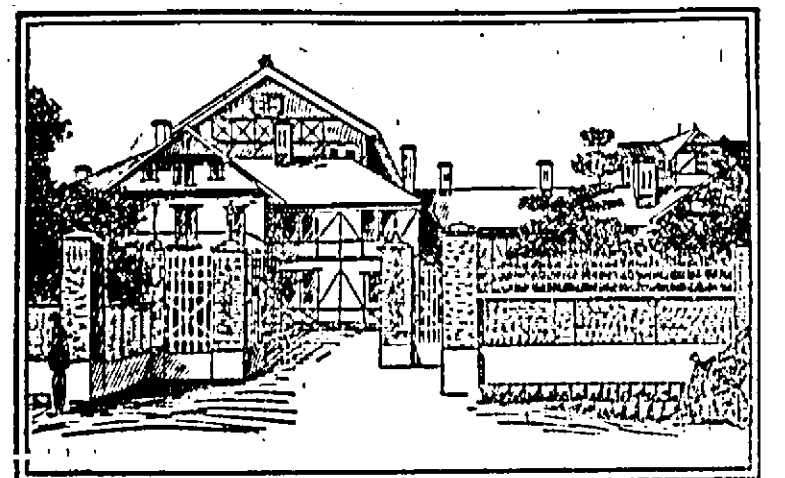

REFUSES TO GIVE FIRM PLEDGE

Wants To Be Delegate-at-Large, But Does Not Want To Give Promise To Stick To La Follette And Vote As He Dictates.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., Jan. 23.—The managers of the "La Follette for President" movement in Wisconsin have not yet succeeded in inducing Governor James O. Davidson to allow the use of his name as a candidate for delegate at large to the national republican convention.
The situation of the La Follette managers continues at the executive office but without ultimate success, and it is understood that the governor maintains his position as a month ago—that he desires to lead a Wisconsin delegation to the convention pledged to support La Follette as long as La Follette has any chance of nomination or until released by La Follette.
The governor refuses to pledge himself to vote for whomsoever the Wisconsin senator chooses after the Wisconsin movement may be found to be hopeless.
It is said there are other elements in the negotiations involving the political future of State Chairman W. D. Connor, whom the La Follette people would like to leave out of the calculations.
The La Follette managers continue to express confidence in the prospects for their man, relying upon the intensity of the presidential contest in the east.
The multiplicity of candidates and the indications that the nomination will eventually go to some candidate who starts with a sturdy following, perhaps small in numbers, who will hold to him when the break comes from Taft and other leading candidates.

VOTE FAILS IN ITS PURPOSE OF CENSURE

Japanese House Fails to Pass Its Measure of Governmental Censure.
(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Tokyo, Jan. 23.—A motion to censure the government was defeated in the lower house of the diet today, by a vote of 177 to 108.
Political affairs in Japan reached a heated point last week when Naikokushin, vice minister of communications, resigned. He will be succeeded by Suzuki of the railroad bureau.
A prediction concerning the probable life of the Marquis Saito's cabinet is inoperative. The inability of the government to invert a cabinet and the resignation of the ministers of finance and communications created a situation approaching a political crisis. Even those best informed are unable to cast future developments with any degree of certainty. The consensus of opinion is to the effect that the present cabinet, either with double portfolios or possible additions, will face the new diet, after which the general elections of the spring will open July 22. The position of minister of finance and minister of communications made vacant by resignations, were at once filled temporarily by the minister of justice taking up also the duties of the former and the minister of the interior taking up also the duties of the latter. The whole trouble is over the increased budget for 1909, which will grow a material increase in the taxes. A synopsis of the budget for 1908-1909 is as follows:
Ordinary receipts, 470,500,000 yen; extraordinary receipts, 110,150,000 yen; expenditures, 426,010,000 yen; extraordinary expenditures, 189,643,000 yen. This is so marked an increase that the several members of the cabinet refuse their sanction and were forced to resign.
The first election under the constitution took place July 4, 1890, and the first session of the imperial diet opened on Nov. 29, 1890. On December 2 the house of peers received the first bill ever presented to a national assembly in Japan. On December 1 the first budget was laid before the house of representatives by Count Matsukata, minister of finance. This was the beginning of constitution government in Japan.

ATTEMPT TO CHECK TERRIBLE DISEASE

Daughters of Afflicted Families Bind Themselves Never to Marry Anyone.
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Genova, Jan. 23.—An heroic attempt is being made by a number of young women of the Alpine village of Tenne in the canton of the Grisons to stop a dreadful hereditary malady. The disease, which passes from generation to generation, is known as "addition to blood." In those afflicted with it the slightest scratch causes a terrible loss of blood, in some cases nothing can stop the bleeding, even from a pin-prick, and a scratch of any depth is almost certain to cause death.
In Tenne the malady only appears in married women. For that reason the daughters of the families afflicted have now bound themselves by oath never to marry, hoping that by their abstention from the joys of matrimony they may free their village from the disease that has made it notorious.

ANNUAL SESSION OF NATIONAL SOCIETY

For the Promotion of Industrial Education Begins in City of Chicago.
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Chicago, Jan. 23.—The important problem of industrial education was taken up for discussion at a conference opened here today under the auspices of the National Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education. Delegates to this meeting had been appointed from a majority of the states, and prominent statesmen, labor and religious leaders, scholars and businessmen were present at the opening. The conference is to remain in session three days.
The conference marks the formal opening of a widespread campaign to arouse public interest in the subject of industrial training, and to work for legislative action in support of industrial schools, where such action seems desirable. Through this campaign the national society hopes to bring about a broad discussion of the whole matter, and to influence the establishment of local and state schools that will materially assist in the thorough training of skilled workmen for the industries. The society hopes, through the medium of agencies already established in the various states, to bring out the defects of the public school system, under which hundreds of thousands of children annually leave school for undesirable employment before they have reached an age where they can enter a trade. In the opinion of the promoters of the present movement, these conditions are such as to constitute a serious menace to American industrial supremacy, which it is imperative to remove.

DRY FARMING CONGRESS IS IN SECOND ANNUAL SESSION

May Attack The Administration's Policy With Regard To Forestry And Public Lands.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Salt Lake City, Utah, Jan. 23.—With delegates present from eleven states west of the Mississippi river representing practically all of the great territory included in the semi-arid and arid region of the country, and the state and territorial governments, the second annual meeting of the Trans-Mississippi Dry Farming congress began its business sessions here today. The sessions will continue through the remainder of the week and during that time important action is expected to be taken looking toward the reclamation of the vast unsettled territory of the west that needs but a fully developed system of dry farming to make it blossom and bear fruit.
Not since the beginning of the dry-farming movement has so much interest been taken in the subject and during the three days' session every phase of the problem will be discussed. Among the speakers will be governors and other public men of prominence, government experts on forestry and kindred subjects and representatives of many commercial organizations and colonization movements.
Delegates continue to pour into the city, every train arriving this morning bringing in scores interested in the work of the congress.
Papers bearing on the various phases of dry farming and the tremendous field for its development in the arid regions of the west will be read by a number of experts from the United States department of agriculture and by practical dry farmers from many states. It is expected also that the administration's policy with regard to forestry and public lands will be attacked and an attempt made to have adopted resolutions, criticizing these policies.
Besides the discussion of methods for conserving the deposited moisture, the congress will deal with the selection of food plants best adapted to the region of partial aridity. The department of agriculture has covered the earth with its experts in a search for plants of that character, and it has found something for almost every condition within the wide range of the United States. The results of these researches will form a portion of the information given out by the congress.

EXPERTS RELATED THEIR EXPERIENCE

Thaw Trial Now Dwindles Down to Expert Insanity Tests by Noted Doctors.
(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
New York, Jan. 23.—The reign of experts began in the Thaw trial today. Dr. Charles G. Wagner, superintendent of the State Hospital for Insane at Binghamton, N. Y., was on the stand most of the morning. At this session it was told in great detail of the three physical examinations he and Dr. H. D. Evans made of Harry Thaw in the Tombs prison during the four months following the killing of Witte. There were a few new details in the physicians' testimony, but in general it was a repetition of what was said last year at the first trial. Wagner did not express his formal opinion as to Thaw's state of mind. After the recess Judge Fosberg announced he would limit both the prosecution and defense to three experts each.

THE POLITICAL OUTLOOK

With the democratic party practically united on one man, and the republican party at sea with half a dozen candidates, the pre-convention campaign presents some feature that are worth studying.

While Mr. Bryan does not represent conservative democracy he does represent an organized party ready to do his bidding, and he will control more democratic votes than he did eight years ago, for two or three reasons.

In the first place free silver is not an issue, and the nation is no longer threatened with cheap money.

Then, too, he stepped aside gracefully, four years ago, to give the conservatives an opportunity to reorganize the party. Their failure to do it relieves him from obligation and establishes his own claim to recognition.

His strength as a candidate is also augmented by the fact that he claims to be the originator of many reforms, which President Roosevelt has pushed so vigorously, and quite an element in the republican party will support him in preference to any man not in sympathy with these radical measures.

Another fact which will influence support is the failure of congress to recognize the clamor for tariff revision, and still another, the primary law epidemic, which disrupts parties, and creates an army of independent voters, destitute of party allegiance, and party affiliations.

There are more political orphans in the country today, than at any time in history, and many of them are threatened with socialism and hypnotized by Bryanism, to greater or less extent.

They are looking for a refuge which promises the most by way of public ownership and control, and Bryan is a good premier.

These are some of the conditions which confront the republican party this early in the campaign, and they can not be regarded as a joke, nor disposed of by a wave of the hand.

Against this aggressive organization and attractive aggregation, is arrayed the party which has been in power, for a dozen years, including a decade of uninterrupted prosperity with its attendant hallucinations and financial demonstrations.

The "big stick" and off-repeated determination to "drive the rascals out" have been very effective, for which the party in power is given full credit, but while this drama was being enacted the party as an organization suffered, and today the cold fact is apparent to every observer that harmony is not the keynote of the pre-convention campaign.

There is, within, the ranks of the party, a strong Roosevelt and anti-Roosevelt element, with a liberal sprinkling of "middle of the road" orphans, ready to support prohibition or anything else "to beat Grant."

The President's following is by far the strongest numerically, his cause of his unique personality, his sagged honesty, and undoubted courage, but the opposition possesses elements of strength with which the party must reckon.

Were Roosevelt a candidate to succeed himself, he might carry the convention by storm, but no man can transfer his popularity to another, and his efforts to do so are sometimes elements of weakness, as has already been shown in the Taft campaign.

The genial secretary of war is abundantly able to stand on his own feet, but his personality is overshadowed by the administration mantle. A man's political friends are frequently his worst enemies, and if Taft is defeated it will not be difficult to locate the cause.

The President's support of Taft, at the expense of other candidates, very naturally creates the feeling that Cannon, Hughes and Knox are not safe men to trust, when the fact is that either one of these three gentlemen would fill the high office of chief executive with credit to themselves and honor to the nation.

While there is no open rupture in the ranks of the republican party, there are complications which require the most intelligent and skillful handling. If Bryan is to be defeated in November it will require united effort and a solid front.

To this end the party should devote its energies, at the sacrifice of personal feeling if necessary. The pre-convention campaign is important, for it determines the action of the convention.

Partly leaders will do well to remember that the country is possessed with a spirit of restlessness, which the people, for which the dominant party is held responsible, is not tending to alleviate. Harmony can be more readily secured in advance of the convention, and harmony is needed.

BREWERS AND SALOONS

Notwithstanding their protest that prohibition does not hurt their business, notwithstanding the fact that internal revenue figures show increased sales of malt and spirituous liquors in 1907 over 1906, brewers, distillers, and wholesale liquor dealers are grinding their teeth. Never before has any one been able to make the "liquor interests" stand together on anything, but common danger has brought about common interest.

Brewer and distiller are shoulder to shoulder to dispute the open territory left to them.

The brewers are especially active, and the brewers, among the larger interests, are mainly responsible for the degradation of the American saloon; the small, local brewers, that is, not the big ones who ship their beer far away. As the brewers deal with the lighter and less harmful form of alcoholic beverages this had leadership or influence bears the look of paradox. But the manufacturers and distributors of spirits, making an imperishable and comparatively concentrated product, are in only distant touch with the saloon-keepers; while the brewers, with their bulky and perishable goods, must maintain close touch.

This contact with their customers, together with an intermediate race for business among brewers, has begotten a system in which many of the increasing evils of the saloon business are due. When a few years ago the saloon-keepers of Chicago made a declaration of their business, as required by state law, five thousand out of eight thousand stated that they were "agents for brewers."

It is the consequent degradation which has driven "drinking" men, north and west, to vote with the prohibitionists, for nothing is more certain about this "prohibition wave" than that it requires its great strength not from pure hatred of strong drink, but from

The cotton growers of the south have effectively cornered cotton, and are holding firm for a 15-cent price. This causes a firm and advancing market, in spite of depression in many times. Factories which use cotton yarns are obliged to pay top notch prices, with no prospect of a decline until another crop of cotton is ready to market.

They are now confronted with no license, in many sections, and a demand for right regulation from all parts of the country. Reform is some times a matter of necessity.

SILKIZED TAFFETA

QUALITY and STYLE—In Silkized Taffeta you have all the intrinsic value of Silk, together with a flood of additional points.

Mere words cannot bespeak the graceful distinction and impressive beauty of this magnificent material.

It's quality appeals to the artistic sense; the price talks to the pocket-book. The very best talent and skill that money can buy is centered on the perfection and workmanship of Silkized Taffeta.

Furthermore, Silkized Taffeta is twenty-eight inches wide. Three yards of this will make a waist.

Put all these facts together. Look at them well.

You will see that for waists, suits, evening gowns, children's dresses, trimmings, linings,—or any where silk is used,—you have the most perfect article ever produced.

Its advantages are decidedly tempting. . . . Cost one-third as much as Silk—it looks better and lasts longer.

Convince yourself by buying Silkized Taffeta.

It is a plain fabric, the price 39c.

Of Course They Said So.

"How did you happen to come to me for your dentistry?" said Dr. Richards to a patient recently.

"Why, you see I'm a stranger here," said the party, "and I inquired of several people as to what dentist to go to and they all said 'to Dr. Richards'." "Of course, I didn't want to be hurt and so I came up to you."

"Well, are you sorry you came?"

"Not a bit. You never hurt me in the least."

It's worth something to have such a reputation for Painless Dentistry. If you need dentistry and wish perfect satisfaction try Dr. Richards. He "delivers the goods."

COUNCIL TO SEE THE ORDINANCE

CITY FATHERS WILL DECIDE ON THE DOG QUESTION.

SPECIAL MEETING TONIGHT

Matter of Vital Importance to the City's Welfare in General to be Decided Upon.

When the common council assembles this evening in special session to decide upon the question of the best means or method to handle the present dog question it is understood that an ordinance will be handed them for their consideration. The ordinance will be drawn up and presented that will order dogs tied up or muzzled when allowed at large upon the streets for the present. Both of these matters will receive due consideration and definite action will probably be taken with a view of ending the present scare.

The Dog Ordinance.
If modeled after the Madison ordinance the proposed addition to the city laws will have a provision whereby persons not paying the dog tax can be arrested, taken into court and fined. This feature of the law is one which has worked with success in Madison and because the labor of the collectors and the care of the dogs is a matter of some importance to the city. Some five years ago the number of arrests of recent dog owners in Madison who were summoned into court was in the neighborhood of a hundred and some of the best citizens were among this number.

The Muzzling.
The muzzling resolution is so worded that it is applicable to the situation as it now exists. Ladies are afraid to go on the streets at the present time because of the danger from savage dogs and children are being scared up indoors because of the danger of being bitten. The ordinance is one that is meeting with popular approval and the following communication to the council from physicians urges its adoption.

The Petition.
To the Hon. Mayor and members of the Common Council of the City of Janesville:

It having been proven by bacteriological test that an epidemic of dumb rabies exists in the city of Janesville; that such epidemic is endangering the health and safety of the people; and as a means of public safety immediate action is demanded to safeguard the public; therefore, we the undersigned physicians of the city of Janesville, Rock county, Wisconsin, petition your honorable body to take such action as may be deemed proper to prevent the spread of this disease and to protect the public health and safety.

Seven men suspected dogs were put out of the way yesterday by the police and others are being closely watched. It is said that the dog that jumped at the lady recently was attracted by the muzz and was not mad, but this only proves he is a dangerous beast. The heads of several other animals have been sent to Madison for analysis and every precaution will be taken to guard closely the animals suspected of having been bitten by mad dogs or showing peculiar signs of the rabies.

There will be a regular meeting of Janesville Commander No. 2, K. P., at 7:30 this evening, F. H. Buack.

One of the prettiest pieces in jewelry ever seen in Janesville was designed by One C. Olin of the jewelry firm of Olin & Olson. The design is a ring consisting of a large, perfectly round fine opal surrounded by twelve diamonds arranged so that the mounting are almost invisible. The effect is that of a large spot of pebbly fire encompassed by the white glitter of the diamonds. The design was first drawn and submitted in water colors showing the full effect. All designs submitted by Mr. Olin are exact reproductions of the article to be made.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Margaret Clark
This morning shortly after seven o'clock Mrs. Margaret Clark, aged seventy-one, passed away at the home of her son, John Clark, 101 Lodge street. Two days ago Mrs. Clark was stricken with paralysis and a second shock this morning brought an end to a long and useful life. Mrs. Clark was born in Portland, County Galway, Ireland, and came to America some thirty-five years ago, living for several years in Menomonee, Wis. She died there some twenty-five years ago and since then Mrs. Clark has made her home with her son John in this city. Two daughters,

Mrs. Katherine Wheeler and Mrs. Agnes Clark of Rock Island, and two sons, John and Patrick of this city, survive her. The funeral will probably be held Saturday and the interment will be at Monroe.

Mrs. Patrick Collins
The funeral of the late Mrs. Patrick Collins of 105 Holmes street, was held this afternoon at St. Patrick's church directly after the arrival of the remains on the noon train from Chicago. Mrs. Collins died Monday evening at the home of her daughter in Ravenswood, Ill., after a week's illness with pneumonia. Mrs. Collins was a pioneer resident of Janesville, who has lived since 1851. She was a woman of strong faith and loved by all who knew her. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. James McElhinny and interment was in Mt. Olivet. The bearers were D. W. Hayes, Patrick Kavanaugh, Michael Hayes, Hugh McClellan and Fred Wilbur. The floral tributes were especially beautiful and their abundance showed the high esteem in which the dead woman was held by her friends.

Mrs. R. J. Fellows
Mrs. R. J. Fellows, mother of the late F. C. Cook, passed away this morning at Minneapolis, Minn., at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. John Stevens. Mrs. Fellows was over eighty years of age and has been in poor health for the past year.

LOCKERS AT GOLF CLUB BROKEN OPEN

Wilson Lane Finds Lockers in the Club House of the Golf Club Broken Open.

Invited by the pleasant weather of the past few days, Wilson Lane went out to the Country Club on Tuesday to play a round. On arriving at the club house he found that practically all the lockers in the basement had been forcibly broken open and their contents overhauled. While no clubs or balls are known to have been taken several pairs of trousers and some shirts are missing. The chest containing the set of tools presented by Mr. Morgan of Hololt, was also broken open. As none of the clubs and balls were taken it would not seem that the act was the work of boys and the person who did it must have had considerable strength as some of the lockers had their keys wound out, wood and all.

All of the windows were securely nailed down and none had been tampered with as far as could be discovered so it is not known how the perpetrator obtained an entrance. Members of the club who have been out to the club house within the last ten days found things in their usual places so the burglary must have been committed within that time.

Surprised on Anniversary: Friends of Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Jeffries surprised them last evening at their home on East street, the occasion being their twenty-third wedding anniversary.

Open Tonight: Opening tonight the Smith Brothers' moving picture show is at the Myers theatre for three nights including a Saturday matinee. Four illustrated songs will be given. A delicious supper was served during the evening each guest coming well provided with good things. The evening was most pleasantly spent and the party broke up at a late hour.

Mr. Farmer

Are you getting RESULTS from your cows? Are you getting just returns for the time and money you have invested? If not, look into the matter and locate the cause. You may be spending plenty of money in feed and giving your cows an abundance but if you don't get RESULTS in the amount of BUTTER FAT in the milk, there is something wrong. It may be the cow or it may be the feed. In either case remedy it.

If you are a believer in brand a milk producer we will not dispute you for brand DOES INCREASE the FLOW, but you need something that contains more protein to produce a high test.

TRAGEDY IN NEW YORK RESTAURANT

WOMAN KILLS A MAN AND THEN COMMITS SUICIDE.

THREAT OF MURDER KEPT

Manicure Blays Advertising Man Because He Had Left Her to Make Home for Aged Mother.

New York, Jan. 23.—Sweeping through the crowded restaurant which takes up the eighth floor of Macy's department store, and into the gentlemen's cafe Wednesday, a tall, sylhetly-dressed woman bent for a moment over the shoulder of a diner, while over something in his ear, and then drawing a revolver from her muff, emptied the contents of the five chambers into his body.

As her victim, Frank Brady, a newspaper advertising solicitor, slipped lifeless to the floor, the woman lunged the weapon from her and taking a second revolver from her muff, shot herself first in the head and then twice in the breast. She died a half hour later.

A note found in the woman's purse proved her to be Mrs. Mary Roberta Clark, a manicure, the widow of a police officer and stepmother of a six-year-old son, Raymond. Brady was 30 years old and she sole support of a helpless aged mother.

Vengeance of a Woman Scorned.

The shooting was the culmination of a series of violent quarrels, and, according to the woman's intimates, in fulfillment of a threat to murder Brady in a public place "before the world," unless he renounced the attention she asserted she received from him when he was less prosperous and she in a position to befriend him.

The police had little difficulty in tracing the tragic story back, from effect to cause. The suicide, who was about 30 years of age, was Mary McLean when she married John Roberts. When the latter died a year ago she assumed the name Clark and supported herself and child, first as the wardrobe woman at an uptown theater and then as a manicure. She was of a prepossessing appearance and had marked business ability. Last August she made a will in which she was able to provide for the education of her son at a fashionable school in Westchester county. A clergyman was made executor.

While she was in prosperous circumstances and before the death of her husband Brady had lodgings at her home and she declared that she helped him to the success which he subsequently attained. A few months ago he left her place and made a home for his mother, whom he brought here from New Jersey. Recently Mrs. Clark thought that Brady was avoiding her and when he called at her home occasionally they quarreled. A few days ago Mrs. Clark called upon her attorney and told him that something serious was going to happen. Wednesday she went to her bank, made a cash deposit, wrote a note identifying herself and referring the reader to her attorney, and, armed with three revolvers, went to the store where she knew Brady usually lunched, and the double tragedy followed.

The police broke the news to Brady's mother, and the Gerry society took charge of the dead woman's boy.

WITHDRAWING PUBLIC MONEY.

Secretary Cortelyou Begins Calling It Back from National Banks.

Washington, Jan. 23.—The secretary of the treasury late Wednesday announced that, owing to the great improvement in financial conditions throughout the country, he had begun the gradual withdrawal of deposits of public moneys in moderate amounts from the national banks. The first call has been made upon New York banks and amounts to approximately $10,000,000. This is in addition to about $10,000,000 returned by the New York banks since December 26.

The secretary also announced that a general call for a moderate amount will be made upon banks in other cities at an early date.

MADE MONEY FROM MISERY

GEN. STOESEL'S WIFE ACCUSED BY COL. VERSHININ.

Charged with Selling Food to Port Arthur Civilians at Most Exorbitant Prices.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 23.—Testimony showing the straits of the civil population at Port Arthur during the siege was given at the court martial of Lieut. Gen. Stoessel Wednesday by Col. Vershinin, who was civil commissioner of that place and who fathered the charges made against Gen. Stoessel, that he reaped a rich harvest by selling eggs and milk and other luxuries to the sick during the siege.

According to Gen. Vershinin, mere existence was a luxury for civilians. Provisions were enormously expensive. A cow cost $800, a pig $500, eggs one dollar each, and other things correspondingly.

He testified that Mme. Stoessel had a large herd of cattle and a flock of chickens and charged exorbitant prices. Shortly before the surrender, he said, she summoned a merchant and attempted to dispose of these, the supposition being that she had an inkling of the coming surrender.

The prosecution's case is practically all in, the judge advocates having dismissed all his witnesses except three, but several of Gen. Stoessel's witnesses have yet to be heard. Among the witnesses examined Wednesday was Capt. Bolgakoff, who was recently pardoned and restored to the army after having served 22 months' imprisonment in the fortress for a revolutionary speech to the Russian prisoners during his captivity in Japan.

MISSOURI RIVER CONGRESS.

Seven States Represented in Gathering at Sioux City.

Sioux City, Ia., Jan. 23.—Seven states were represented at the opening of the Missouri Navigation congress here Wednesday. Delegates, nearly 1,000 in number, arrived during the day from Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Missouri and Kansas.

Politics crept into the opening session of the convention. The fight came over the control of the temporary organization between the boosters from Kansas City and Omaha. The fight for the next convention has something to do with the lineup. The Omaha men won in the selection of Victor Bender of Council Bluffs as temporary chairman and A. B. Beall of Sioux City as temporary secretary. The principal addresses of the afternoon were delivered by Gov. Cummins of Iowa and Congressman E. C. Ellis of Missouri. Both spoke strongly in favor of co-operation with other states in making a fight for congressional appropriations for the work of improving the Missouri river.

GUANO ISLANDS IN DISPUTE.

Mexico and United States May Clasp Over Title.

Mexico City, Jan. 23.—The disputed ownership of gulf islands off the Yucatan coast, worth $70,000,000, gives promise of a spirited legal clash between the United States and the Mexican government. The heirs of J. W. Taylor, deceased, claim to have acquired full title from Pascuala Quilan, who held the islands by right of discovery. The Mexican government claims that the property is its territory.

The islands in question are the Arcaas Keys, the largest of which is 14 miles long and about three-fourths of a mile wide. They are located 82 miles off Yucatan and are rich in guano deposits, which Prof. Hallow of Yale university estimated at 3,000,000 tons.

Magoon Called to Washington.

Havana, Jan. 23.—The announcement was made at the palace late Wednesday that Gov. Magoon had been summoned to Washington. The news was circulated in extra editions of the afternoon papers and caused much interest and speculation regarding the cause.

Difficult Breathing

Short breath, fluttering, palpitation, sinking spells are symptoms of a weak heart, struggling to do its work. It must keep the blood in circulation to carry nourishment to make flesh, bone and muscle, and remove the worn-out particles. When it cannot do this, it must have help. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure gives strength to the heart nerves and muscles, and increases the heart action.

"I am glad to say that I am so much improved in health. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure cured me when several doctors failed. I think no other medicine could do for me what Heart Cure has done. My case was truly bad as it could be at times. I had difficulty in getting my breath, my heart beat so fast at times that I thought it impossible to live without relief. The cure was very severe in my left side, and my nerves were all unstrung. I had almost all hope of being cured, and I am sure I would not, if I had not taken the Heart Cure. I take great pleasure in recommending Dr. Miles' Heart Cure to all who suffer with heart disease."

WHAT THE KIDNEYS DO.

Their Unceasing Work Keeps Us Strong and Healthy.

All the blood in the body passes through the kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys filter the blood. They work night and day. When healthy they remove about 500 grains of impure matter daily, when unhealthy some part of this impure matter is left in the blood. This brings on many diseases and symptoms—pain in the back, headache, nervousness, hot, dry skin, rheumatism, gout, gravel, disorders of the eyesight and hearing, dizziness, irregular heart, debility, drooping, dropsy, deposits in the urine, etc. But if you keep the filters right you will have no trouble with your kidneys.

Mrs. W. Johnson, of 127 Pearl St., Janesville, Wis., says:

"For a long time I had a severe pain in my back that must have been due to some disorder of the kidneys. It was coming constantly and became so severe at times that I was almost prostrated. Numerous remedies that I tried, failed to help me and finally I began using Doan's Kidney Pills which I procured at The People's Drug Store. After using this remedy for a short time I found a complete cure, and the trouble has not returned."

"Very well," I won't," said Seward, smiling. "Tell me what is happening out there." He made a gesture toward the window. "All the gossip the newspapers make. I've talked Dr. Grishy to death; I've talked Gumble to death; I've read myself stupid. What's going on, Billy?"

So Fleetwood sketched for him a gay cartoon of events, caricaturing various episodes in the social kaleidoscope which might interest him. Politics was touched upon, and they spoke of the possibility of Fernald going to the assembly, the sport of boss building having become fashionable among amateurs and providing a new amusement for the idle rich. So city, state and national issues were run through lightly, business conditions noticed, the stock market speculated upon, and

"Don't do that, Billy," presently conversed Seward. "You're not doing it with a yawn from Fleetwood as he looked into his empty glass at the last bit of ice."

"Don't do that, Billy," smiled Seward. "You haven't discussed upon art, literature and science yet, and you can't go until you've adjusted the affairs of the nation for the next twenty-four hours."

"How soon will you be out?" inquired Fleetwood.

"Oh? I don't know. I shall try to drive to the office tomorrow."

"Why the devil did you resign from all your clubs? How can I see you if I don't come here?" began Fleetwood impatiently. "I know, of course, that you're not going anywhere, but a man always goes to his club. You don't look well, Stephen. You are too much alone."

Seward did not answer. His face and body had certainly grown thinner since Fleetwood had last seen him. Plank, too, had been shocked at the change in him—the dark, lined lines under the eyes; the pallor, the curious immobility of the man, save for his fingers, which were always restless, now moving in search of some small object to worry and turn over and over, now nervously settling into a grasp on the arm of his chair.

"How is Amalgamated Electric?" asked Fleetwood abruptly.

"I think it's all right. Want to buy some?" replied Seward, smiling.

Plank stirred in his chair ponderously. "Somebody is kicking it to pieces," he said.

"Somebody is trying to," smiled Seward.

"Harrington," nodded Fleetwood. Seward nodded back. Plank was silent.

"Of course," continued Fleetwood tentatively, "you people need not worry with Howard Quarrier back of you."

Nobody said anything for a while. Presently Seward's restless hands, moving in search of something, encountered a pencil lying on the table beside him, and he picked it up and began drawing initials and scribbles on the margin of a newspaper, and all the scribbles framed initials, and all the initials were the same, twining and twisting into endless variations of the letters S. L.

"Yes, I must go to the office tomorrow," he repeated absently. "I am better—in fact, I am quite well except for this sprain." He looked down at his bandaged foot; then his pencil moved listlessly again, continuing the endless variations on the two letters. It was plain that he was tired.

Fleetwood rose and made his adieu almost affectionately. Plank moved forward on tiptoe, bulky and noiseless, and Seward held out his hand, saying something amiably formal.

"Would you like to have me come again?" asked Plank, red with embarrassment, yet so nervously that at first Seward found no words to answer him; then:

"Would you care to come, Mr. Plank?"

"Yes."

Seward looked at him curiously, almost cautiously. His first impressions of the man had been summed up in one contemptuous word. How odd, hearing that what was there in common between himself and such a type as Plank? He had not even troubled himself to avoid him at Shotover. He had merely been aware of him when Plank spoke to him.

Perhaps Plank had changed, perhaps Seward had, for he found nothing offensive in the bulky young man now—nothing particularly attractive, either, except for a certain simplicity, a certain direct candor in the heavy blue eyes which met his squarely.

"Come in for a cigar when you have a few moments idle," said Seward slowly.

"It will give me great pleasure," said Plank, bowing.

And that was all. He followed Fleetwood down the stairs. Waits held their coats and bowed them out into the falling shadows of the winter twilight.

Seward, sitting beside his window, watched them enter their house and drive away up the avenue. A dull flush had settled over his cheeks, the aroma of spirits hung in the air, and he looked across the room at the decanter. Presently he drank some of his tea, but it was lukewarm, and he pushed the cup from him.

"Gumble, are you there?" he asked carefully.

The butler entered from the hall-way. "Yes, sir."

"You may leave that decanter," he said. "You, sir."

But the old servant may have misunderstood, for he only bowed and ambled off downstairs with the decanter, either heedless or deaf to his master's sharp order to return.

Lamp-light brought out sharply the physical change in Seward—the angular shadows that under the cheek bones, the hard, slightly swollen flesh in the bulki shadows around the eyes. The mark of the master vice was there—its stamp in the swollen, worn out hollows; its imprint in the fine lines at the corners of his mouth; his sign manual in the faintest relaxation of the under lip, which had not yet become a loosey.

For the last of the Swards had at last stepped into the highway which his doomed forebears had traveled before him.

"Gumble," he called tentatively.

A quivering voice, an unsteady step, and the old man entered again. "Mr. Stephen, sir?"

"Bring that decanter back. Didn't you hear me tell you just now?"

"Sir?"

"Didn't you hear me?"

"Yes, Mr. Stephen, sir."

There was a silence.

"Gumble?"

"Sir?"

"Are you going to bring that decanter?"

The old butler bowed and ambled from the room, and for a long while Seward sat silently listening and seeing the edges of the paper with his trembling pencil. Then the lead broke short, and he flung it from him and pulled the bell. Waits came this time, a lank, sandy, silent man, grown gray as a rat in the service of the Swards. He received his master's orders and withdrew, and again Seward waited, biting his under lip and tearing bits from the edges of the newspaper with fingers never still, but nobody came with the decanter, and after awhile his tense muscles relaxed. Something in his very soul seemed to snap, and he sank back in his chair, the hot tears blinding him.

He had got as far as that. Moments of self pity were becoming almost as frequent as searing intervals of self contempt.

So they all knew what was the matter with him. They all knew—the doctor, the servants, his friends. Had he not surprised the quick suspicion in Fleetwood's glance when he told him he had slipped and sprained his ankle? What if he had been drunk when he fell—fell on his own doorstep, carried into the old Seward house by old Seward servants, drunk as his forefathers? It was none of Fleetwood's business. It was none of the servants' business. It was nobody's business except his own.

The tears dried in his hot eyes. He jerked the old fashioned bell savagely, and after a long while he heard servants whispering together in the passageway outside his door.

Dr. Grishy came into the room from the outer shadows of the hall.

He was very small, very bald and clean shaven, with a face like a nut crack, and the brown wig he wore was atrocious and curled forward over his colorless ears. He wore steel rimmed spectacles, each glass divided into two lenses and he stood on tiptoe to look out through the upper lenses on the world and always bent almost double to use the lower or reading lenses.

"What's all this racket?" said the little old doctor harshly. "Got cold? Got the toothache? I'm ashamed of you, Stephen! Look up! Look at me! Out with your tongue! Well, now, what the devil's the trouble?"

"You know," muttered Seward, abandoning his wrist to the little man, who seated himself beside him. Dr. Grishy scarcely noted the pulse. "The delicate pressure had become a strong cross.

"Know what?" he grunted. "How do I know what's the matter with you? Hey? Now, now, don't try to explain, Steve. Don't fly off the handle. All right; grant that I do know what's bothering you. I want to see that ankle first. Here, somebody! Light that gas. Why the mischief don't you have the house wired for electricity, Stephen? It's wholesome.

Gas isn't. Lamps are worse, sir. Do as I tell you." And he went on loudly, grumbling and muttering and never ceasing his talk, while Seward, wincing as the dressing was removed, lay back and closed his eyes.

Half an hour later Gumble appeared to announce dinner.

"I don't want any," said Seward. "Eat," said Dr. Grishy harshly. "—don't eat a bit."

"Eat, I tell you! Do you think I don't mean what I say?"

So he ate his broth and toast, the doctor curiously declining to join him. He ate hurriedly, closing his eyes in aversion. Even the food was flat and distasteful to him.

And at last he lay back, white and unstrung, the momentarily deadened desperation glimmering under his half closed eyes. And for a long while Dr. Grishy sat, doubled almost in two, studying the patterns in the faded carpet.

"I guess you'd better go, Stephen," he said at length.

"Up the river to Mulqueen's?"

"Yes. Let's try it, Steve. You'll be on your feet in two weeks. Then you'll

Dr. Grishy, better go—up the river—to Mulqueen's."

"I'll go if you say so. But I can't go now."

"I didn't say go now. I said in two weeks."

"Perhaps."

"Will you give me your word?" demanded the doctor sharply.

"No, doctor."

"Why not?"

"Because I may have to be here on business. There seems to be some sort of crisis coming which I don't understand."

"There's a crisis right here, Steve, which I understand," snapped Dr. Grishy. "Face it like a man! Face it like a man! You're sick to your bones, boy—sick, sick! Fight the fight, Steve! Fight a good fight! There's a fighting chance! On my soul of honor there is, Steve, a fighting chance for you! Now, now, boy! Buckle up tight! Tuck up your sword above! At 'em, Steve! Oh, my boy, my boy, I know! I know! The little man's voice broke, but he steadied it instantly with a snarl of his interlocking jaws and scowled on his patient and shook his little withered fist at him.

His patient lay very still in the shadow.

Are You a Trust Buster?

Hey—You! Yes, YOU'RE the man we mean.

You're always talking about the harm the trusts are doing. The country's going to the demerit howlows, you say, because of the uncurbed trusts. Rich growing richer, poor getting poorer. Used to be that a poor man could go into business for himself in a modest way and make a good living. Now he must become a clerk or a roustabout or a hedeerrier for some corporation—some combination that has grown to be a Goliath of bigness, that has devoured the fat of the land and is still gourmandizing upon it, till there's not a scrap of bone left for the under dog.

That's your line of talk. You're still handing it out, and you're proud of it.

Well, now, let's see: Are YOU a trust buster YOURSELF?

Didn't we see you stalk up to the postoffice just now and mail a letter with the address of a city Mail Order Store on the envelope? Hey? Didn't we?

Don't you know that the Mail Order Store is a trust—one of the most dangerous in the crowd? Don't you know that it is secretly and silently and slyly closing the doors of opportunity to the young men in country towns and small cities like ours? Don't you know that the Mail Order Trust is collecting the patronage of town and country people by the mail route, thereby cutting down the patronage of the smaller merchant, the local man who is trying to build up a modest, independent, antitrust business?

Hey?

Didn't that ever occur to you?

N. B. (which means note well): Why don't you trade at home instead of helping to build up a trust that hurts your home place?

January 23, 1899—Nine years ago today 2300 Doukhobors landed in Canada from Russia, the Canadian government giving each family 160 acres of land.

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain in the head, pain in the back—nothing else usually. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and he proves it by his created a little pink tablet. That tablet—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets—coaxes blood pressure away from pain centers, and is a charming, pleasingly beautiful, healthy, though safely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure. It's a painful period with women, some say. If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a certainty, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it in 20 minutes, and the tablets simply distribute the unnatural blood pressure.

Inside your finger, and doesn't it get red, and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain comes. It's simply common sense.

We sell at 25 cents, and cheerfully recommend
